Tonic: Creative Business Project mixes creativity and business in a range of free, innovative courses offered in an accessible way.

For those working in the creative industries there are business courses that will help you to manage, market and present your ideas.

Whether you are considering higher education, looking for ways to improve your business or your career, or you are thinking about a career change; Tonic may have a course for you.

All courses are taken from higher education programmes and if successfully completed can attract credits that may aid entry to courses at colleges and universities.

Tonic courses are free and are offered at times to suit those who work or are studying. Applications are welcome from everyone and entry is by informal interview.
